Committing to be a natural science student will be academically challenging, but also very rewarding. Depending on your language skills, studying in English will give you an extra edge at university or any other international setting. Or perhaps being taught in English will be like coming home, and you will join classmates who share your view that the world is your future arena.

As in other schools, the natural science programme focuses on traditional science subjects including laboratory work, but unlike other schools your teachers have experience from international school systems. This means they know what it takes to excel at university level in many different countries around the globe, ensuring your education is truly international. We will prepare you thoroughly for continuing higher studies at universities in Sweden and abroad. Upon completion of the programme, students can choose from a wide range of possible future careers, from engineering to medicine, from business to law, and everything in between.

In combination with elective subjects (individuella val), you can create choices to deepen or widen your studies with subjects like Psychology, Biotechnology, Programming level 1, Mathematics in-depth level 1, Entrepreneurship, Art, Speech, Ensemble Music, and Modern Languages.
